

Pete & Dora Zdanis

1-Star Diamond Directors, Pennsylvania, USA

When Pete Zdanis was downsized from the career he had built over 25 years, he decided it was time to take his USANA business full time. It didn't take long for his wife, Dora, to catch the USANA vision as well. Now after 14 years of hard work, this successful couple is living their lives on their own terms.

At home in Chester Springs, Pennsylvania, Pete and Dora spend time playing golf, visiting family, working on making positive lifestyle changes, and staying physically fit. "We're very involved with USANA's RESET program and we've both been able to lose weight," Dora says. "I finally took the advice to 'Stop trying, and just do it!' We have experienced weight loss and we continue to follow RESET to our ultimate weight loss goals."

The Zdanises are also grateful to give back to their community. They are always looking for ways to contribute to the wellbeing of others, including volunteering for their church and donating time and money to charities. "One of our greatest joys is to give back, because of the gratitude we feel for everything we've worked so hard for," Dora says. "It gives us so much pleasure to give back to our community, family, and the Children's Hunger Fund."

Another passion they share is watching auto racing. Pete and Dora enjoyed the sport long before meeting each other. "One of our first dates was at the Indianapolis 500 in 1991," Pete recalls. "Auto racing was one of the commonalities we had when we were getting to know each other." Traveling to Indianapolis is now a family tradition, as well as the Daytona 500 and other NASCAR races throughout the U.S.

Having perfected the balance between work and play, the Zdanises devote a fair share of their time to travel. "We went to Switzerland with the Fortune 25 last year and extended our trip with a week in Italy," Pete says. They also traveled to Hawaii, the Caribbean, and Ireland with USANA. "And we're looking forward to the Mediterranean cruise next summer," Pete admits.

Despite being Fortune 25 members, Pete and Dora believe they have an even more important role to play—that of grandparents. Family is their top priority, and the Zdanises love having the freedom to spend time with all of them. "We make frequent trips to Michigan for family events," Dora says. "We also plan on taking our grandchildren to Disney World in 2009!"

Even though they love traveling the world, improving their health with RESET, and enjoying their favorite pastimes, Pete and Dora are quick to point out that they aren't slowing down with their business. "We are constantly revisiting our strategies," Pete says. "There are still things we want to accomplish. We want to help people to build on their dreams and reach their goals. That is what USANA is all about."
